Dear Students, Our school is organising an exciting winter sports trip to Snowdonia Resort from 10th to 14th February. This is a great chance to enjoy activities like skiing and snowboarding on real slopes. To participate, you must select your choices on the school's online portal. Use your unique password to log in and complete the registration. Packing wisely is key. Bring only necessary luggage to keep things manageable. We recommend warm layers, waterproof jackets, and sturdy boots. Health and safety are priorities; please inform us of any medical conditions. While walking on pavements in the resort area, stay alert and use designated paths. The resort provides comfortable accommodation with cushions on the beds for a good night's sleep. We aim to make this trip unforgettable, so that you can cherish the memories forever. If you have questions, see Mrs. Taylor in the PE department. Best regards, The School Trips Committee

Subject: My New Volunteer Job! Hi Sam, Hope you're doing well! I wanted to tell you about my new volunteer work at the City Wildlife Park. It's terrific! I work with the animals and help visitors. The job is rather busy, but I love it because I learn so much about wildlife. My ambition is to become a zoologist one day, so this experience is perfect. I prefer working outdoors rather than in an office. The staff have a positive attitude, which makes it even better. They are very supportive. Last week, we had a school group visit. One student asked where the toilet was, and I showed them. It was funny because they were more interested in the monkeys than the facilities! I enjoyed chatting with them. How are things with you? Still thinking about that full-time job offer? Let me know soon. Best, Alex

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is Alex mainly writing to Sam about?

- A) His new volunteer job at a wildlife park.
- B) A funny incident at school.
- C) His ambition to work in an office.
- D) A job offer for a full-time position.

2. What is Alex's ambition?

- A) To become a teacher.
- B) To work with school groups.
- C) To become a zoologist.
- D) To manage a wildlife park.

3. Why does Alex talk about the student asking for the toilet?

- A) To show that the park has good facilities.
- B) To share a humorous anecdote from his work.
- C) To complain about the visitors.
- D) To explain why he prefers outdoor work.

4. From the email, we can infer that Alex _____.

- A) prefers indoor work environments.
- B) has a negative attitude towards his job.
- C) finds his volunteer work rewarding.
- D) is uninterested in wildlife.

Last summer, my family and I embarked on an exciting journey to Canada. We wanted to search for unique experiences in the beautiful Rocky Mountains. The views were simply awesome, with vast forests and sparkling lakes at every turn. We relied on signposts to navigate the trails, which were sometimes tricky to follow. It was pretty challenging, but the fresh air made it all worthwhile. Each day, we covered approximately 10 to 12 kilometres. In the evenings, we relaxed in a cozy lodge. One afternoon, we stumbled upon a local soccer match – it was fun to watch! The players reminded me of my hero, a famous footballer who inspires me to stay active. We also enjoyed trying different foods, including some spicy Indian curries that were a highlight of the trip. This adventure taught me so much about nature and culture, and I can't wait for my next travel quest.

Join us for a fun weekend camping trip to Green Valley! This event is perfect for sociable teenagers who love the outdoors. We will meet at the school gate at 9 am on Saturday. Please bring your own snacks and a water bottle. For lunch, we will have a picnic, so make sure to bring sandwiches or something similar. The preparation is simple: just pack your bag with warm clothes and a torch. We will set up tents near the lake, and in the evening, we can chat around the campfire. It might be a bit stressful to set up the tent at first, but our leaders will help you. Don't forget to update your phone with the latest map before we go. Travel by aeroplane is not needed; we will go by bus. Remember to listen carefully to the safety instructions. See you there!

Last summer, Alex, a 16-year-old student from London, joined a volunteer program in France. The program was part of a school project to experience life abroad. Alex lived on a small farm with basic facilities, such as a shared kitchen and outdoor toilets, which was a change from the luxury of home. The farm had several animals, including a donkey named Pierre, who became Alex's favourite. One important job was to measure the height of Pierre every week for a display at an agricultural show. At first, Alex considered this an unimportant task, but the farmer said that the display helped teach children about animal growth. Alex used a special tool to measure accurately and wrote down the figures in a notebook. The work was tiring, but Alex enjoyed being outdoors and learning new skills. Other volunteers came from different countries, and they worked together to keep the farm running. By the end of the program, Alex felt that the experience was valuable, not just for the farm but for personal growth.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the passage mainly about?

- A) Alex's trip to France for a holiday.
- B) Alex's experience volunteering on a farm in France.
- C) The life of a donkey named Pierre.
- D) The facilities at a French farm.

2. How often did Alex measure Pierre's height?

- A) Every day.
- B) Once a week.
- C) Every month.
- D) Only at the end of the program.

3. Why was the display important according to the farmer?

- A) To sell the donkey to visitors.
- B) To show off the farm's luxury facilities.
- C) To teach children about animal growth.
- D) To attract more volunteers.

4. What can be inferred about Alex's feelings at the end of the program?

- A) Alex was disappointed with the experience.
- B) Alex felt the work was too difficult.
- C) Alex valued the personal growth from the experience.
- D) Alex preferred the city life to farm life.

5. What does the word 'unimportant' mean in the passage?

- A) Very important.
- B) Not important.
- C) Somewhat important.
- D) Extremely important.

Dear Diary, Today was quite an adventure. My neighbour, Mr. Jones, who recently retired, asked me to babysit his two young children. He needed to go into town for an appointment. I said yes because I enjoy spending time with them. We walked to the charming old museum building nearby. It's a lovely place with lots of history. Inside, there was a gentle dog as part of an exhibit about animals. The children were excited! While looking at the displays, I tried to pronounce the name of a dinosaur, but it was tricky. Another fun part was when we got to draw pictures of the animals. The time flew by, and soon Mr. Jones was back. He thanked me and said I did a great job. I felt proud and happy.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the main idea of the diary entry?

- A) The writer's experience babysitting for a retired neighbour.
- B) A visit to a museum with family.
- C) Learning to pronounce difficult words.
- D) Describing a gentle animal at the library.

2. Where did the writer go with the children?

- A) To the park.
- B) To the museum.
- C) To the library.
- D) To the zoo.

3. Why did Mr. Jones ask the writer to babysit?

- A) He was going shopping.
- B) He had an appointment in town.
- C) He wanted to visit the museum.
- D) He needed help with his children.

4. How does the writer feel about the experience?

- A) Bored and tired.
- B) Annoyed with the children.
- C) Proud and happy.
- D) Confused about the exhibits.

5. What does the word 'gentle' describe in the passage?

- A) The museum building.

Last weekend, on Saturday, 15th October, our school held a charity fair in the main hall to raise money for the local children's hospital. The event started at 10 a.m. and lasted until 4 p.m. We encouraged all students and their families to join, and many volunteered to help. There were several stalls: a bake sale where we sold homemade cakes and cookies at inexpensive prices, a game stall with fun activities, and a raffle. The raffle prize was a weekend trip to Africa, which was donated by a local travel agency. One popular game was a mini motor-racing track where players could switch cars and compete. We also had a photo booth where we could take pictures of ourselves with funny props. By the end of the day, we had raised over 500 pounds, which was fantastic. The event showed how we can work together to make a difference.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the main purpose of this report?

- A) To describe a school trip to Africa.
- B) To explain how a charity event was organised and its success.
- C) To advertise a motor-racing game.
- D) To list the prizes in a raffle.

2. How much money was raised at the charity fair?

- A) Over 500 pounds.
- B) Exactly 500 pounds.
- C) Around 400 pounds.
- D) The report does not mention the amount.

3. Why was the trip to Africa included in the event?

- A) As a prize for the raffle.
- B) To teach students about different countries.
- C) To promote tourism in Africa.
- D) As a gift for volunteers.

4. What can be inferred about the students' feelings towards the event?

- A) They were bored and uninterested.
- B) They felt proud of their achievements.
- C) They preferred the bake sale to other activities.
- D) They were angry about the raffle prize.

5. The word 'inexpensive' in the passage means:

Welcome to the Greenfield Football Club webpage! We are a lively group that meets regularly every Tuesday and Thursday from 3:30 PM to 5:00 PM in the school sports field. Our club is perfect for anyone who enjoys football and wants to play in a team. To join, you must obtain permission from your parents and submit a signed form at the entrance of the sports hall. We have a large collection of footballs, jerseys, and other equipment available for all members. Our coach, Mr. Jones, is very good-looking and friendly, but his training drills can sometimes be confusing for beginners. However, we always support each other. We focus on regular practice sessions to improve skills like passing and shooting. Throughout the year, we play friendly matches and enter local tournaments. If you have any questions, feel free to ask any club member. We hope to see you soon!

Last week, our school held its annual Career Day in the main hall. Students from all years gathered to learn about different occupations. One of the most exciting talks was by Mr. Davies, a former astronaut. He described what it's like to travel in a spaceship and see Earth from above. Many students were inspired, but some disagreed about whether space travel is important. During the session, we sat in a circle beside the stage to ask questions. I realised that being an astronaut requires a lot of hard work and training. The event was part of our school's eightieth anniversary celebrations, which have been happening all season. Mr. Davies showed photos from his missions and talked about the beauty of seeing the planet from space. He encouraged us to pursue our dreams. After the talk, we had a workshop where we discussed our favourite occupations in small groups. It was a memorable day for everyone.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the article mainly about?

- A) A school's anniversary party
- B) A Career Day event at school
- C) A talk by a famous astronaut
- D) A workshop on space travel

2. Where did the students sit during the talk?

- A) On the stage
- B) In a circle beside the stage
- C) Beside the hall entrance
- D) In their classrooms

3. Why did the author mention the school's eightieth anniversary?

- A) To show how old the school is
- B) To explain why Career Day was held
- C) To provide context for the event
- D) To celebrate the school's history

4. What can be inferred about Mr. Davies?

- A) He is currently an astronaut.
- B) He inspired all students to become astronauts.
- C) He has experience in space travel.
- D) He disagreed with the students about space travel.

Hi Sarah, How are you? I'm writing about our trip to the coast next weekend. I found a good flight deal, so I booked two tickets. The flight is on Saturday morning, which is perfect. We're going to do some outdoor activities like hiking and swimming. The weather forecast says it will be sunny, so I'm excited. Actually, I was a bit worried about the demand for tickets, but it turned out to be fine. For lunch, we can try the local food. I heard they have delicious seafood and chilli dishes. I'm not sure if you like spicy food, but we can find something else if not. Let me know if this plan is satisfactory. Also, intelligent idea to bring sunscreen! I'll pack my new T-shirt for the trip. See you soon, Tom

Last weekend, I went on a trip to Brighton with my family. The temperature was pleasantly warm, perfect for walking along the beach. We stayed in a hostel where our room was located downstairs, which was great because we didn't have to climb stairs with our heavy suitcases. On our first evening, we discovered a talented guitarist performing near the pier. His music was so relaxing that we stayed to listen for over an hour. For breakfast the next morning, we had boiled eggs and fresh fruit. I was willing to try surfing, an activity I'd never done before, but my brother was hesitant. This caused a brief argument about what to do that day. Eventually, we agreed to split up: I went to the surfing school, while he visited the local museum with our parents. Later, we all met up and shared our exciting stories. It was an enjoyable and memorable trip, teaching me the value of trying new things and compromising with family.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the main purpose of this blog entry?

- A) To describe a family holiday in Brighton.
- B) To give advice on beach holidays.
- C) To compare surfing and museum visits.
- D) To explain how to avoid arguments on trips.

2. Where was the family's room in the hostel?

- A) On the top floor.
- B) Next to the beach.
- C) Downstairs.
- D) Near the pier.

3. Why does the writer mention the guitarist?

- A) To show that Brighton has good music scenes.
- B) To explain why they stayed near the pier.
- C) To describe an enjoyable part of the trip.
- D) To compare with the surfing lesson.

4. What can be inferred about the writer's brother?

- A) He preferred surfing to the museum.
- B) He was not willing to try new activities.
- C) He enjoyed the boiled eggs for breakfast.
- D) He liked the guitarist's music more than the writer.

5. What does 'willing' mean in the sentence 'I was willing to try surfing'?

- A) Happy.
- B) Ready or prepared to do something.
- C) Unwilling.
- D) Excited.

The Riverdale Community Summer Festival is back, and it's going to be more lively than ever! On Saturday, 15th July, from 10 am to 6 pm, join us at the Riverside Park for a day full of excitement. The highlight of the festival is the annual sailing contest, where participants can show off their skills on the lake. Whether you're a beginner or an experienced sailor, everyone is welcome to enter. Besides the contest, there will be numerous stalls offering delicious food, including a variety of frozen treats to keep you cool. For those who prefer land-based fun, we have hand-held game consoles set up for friendly competitions. Live music performances will add to the lively atmosphere, making it a perfect day out for families and friends. Registration for the sailing contest is free, but due to limited spaces, it's advisable to sign up early. You can register online or at the information booth on the day. Remember, it's unlikely that we'll have another event like this until next summer, so don't miss this opportunity!

Yesterday, thirteen-year-old Sam and his friends decided to have a barbecue in the city park. It was a foggy morning, but they were certain the weather would improve by afternoon. They packed a cooler with food, including eggs for making an omelette later, and set off on their bikes. On the way, they cycled past the old railway station, which always reminded them of their history lessons about the industrial revolution. When they arrived at the park, they found a perfect spot near the modern art gallery. While setting up the barbecue, Sam noticed a warning sign about fire safety rules. He quickly called his friends over to read it, and they made sure to follow all the instructions carefully. After enjoying their meal, they decided to visit the gallery and saw an exhibition of local artists. It was a fantastic day, and they felt lucky to have such exciting adventures together.

Dear Diary, Yesterday was the annual school sports day, and it was so much fun! I participated in the running race, and although I didn't win, it was a pleasure to cheer for my friends. The traffic to the stadium was busy in the morning, but we arrived on time. During lunch, we had a big dinner at school – I mean, it was more like a late lunch, but they called it dinner. It was obvious that everyone was tired after all the activities. I saw a small creature, like a hedgehog, near the field, which was exciting. Thinking about the environment, I'm glad our school promotes recycling. Also, I've been watching my weight lately because I want to stay fit for next year's sports day. It was a memorable day, and I'm already looking forward to the next annual event. From, Sam

Riverside School's International Day was a vibrant event celebrating cultural diversity. Journalist Sarah from the City Times attended to report on the activities. She began with an announcement about the day's goals, stressing the need to understand different cultures. Stalls representing countries like Ireland offered packets of information on traditions and language. Interactive workshops taught basic phrases in various languages. The event highlighted the meaning of global community, fostering respect among students. Over 200 people participated, including parents and local officials. Students from various grades helped run the stalls, and there were performances featuring traditional dances and music. The school also organized a quiz where participants had to understand announcements in languages like French and Spanish. The Ireland stall provided green packets as souvenirs, which were a hit. In her article, Sarah noted how the event successfully promoted language learning and cultural appreciation. The principal emphasized that understanding different languages and customs is key to building a harmonious school community.

Last month, Riverside School started a comedy production for the spring festival. Mia, whose nationality is Spanish, wanted to compete for one of the main parts, but she was nearly too nervous to stand on the stage. Mr Cole, the honest drama teacher, wrote the rehearsal times on the blackboard every morning so nobody forgot them. During the first practice, a local cameraman visited the hall to film a short report about the club. He asked the students to repeat one funny scene several times. Mia was terrified when she forgot her line, but her classmates laughed kindly and clapped. After that, she relaxed and spoke more clearly. Although Mia did not get the lead role, she helped the club finish a lively show and learned that taking part was sometimes more important than winning.

Hi Ben, Thanks for your message about Saturday. I spent the day in the city with my cousin Ella, who has real musical talent. First, we went to a short lecture at the arts centre about classical music. The speaker explained why some young people think it is old-fashioned, but he also showed how exciting it can be. After that, we did some shopping for sunglasses and a new phone battery because Ella had lost both during a night out. The only disadvantage of the trip was the crowd. There were so many people in the streets because the weekend nightlife festival had already started. Still, we enjoyed the atmosphere and even heard a student orchestra playing outside the station. On the way home, Ella said she might join the school music club again.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. Why did the writer go to the city?

- A) To work at a festival
- B) To enjoy music activities and shop
- C) To return a receipt
- D) To meet a head teacher

2. What did Ella need to buy?

- A) A dress and shoes
- B) Books about classical music
- C) Sunglasses and a phone battery
- D) Tickets for a dance class

3. What was the disadvantage of the trip?

- A) The lecture was cancelled
- B) There were too many people
- C) The shops were closed
- D) Ella forgot her bag

4. What can we understand about Ella?

- A) She may rejoin the music club
- B) She dislikes classical music
- C) She hates shopping trips
- D) She wants to leave school

5. What does the word talent mean in the email?

- A) A natural ability
- B) A difficult exam
- C) A noisy instrument
- D) A type of concert

On the thirtieth day of our summer project, our class visited a cultural museum in Bristol. An experienced guide called Mrs Green led us through the building and showed us a new documentary about the history of local science. After the film, she asked us to describe the object that interested us most. I chose an old suitcase that had belonged to a young chemist who travelled around Europe. Mrs Green said his career began when he was still at school and he loved chemistry experiments. She also explained that students should keep notes whenever they visit a museum, because small details are easy to forget. Before we left, we were allowed to look into a narrow closet where workers store costumes and posters from past exhibitions. The trip was much more interesting than I had expected.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What did the class watch at the museum?

- A) A comedy play
- B) A documentary about local science
- C) A live chemistry lesson
- D) A sports film

2. Which object did the writer choose to describe?

- A) An old suitcase
- B) A silver medal
- C) A camera
- D) A school uniform

3. Why did Mrs Green say students should keep notes?

- A) The museum was noisy
- B) Teachers would collect them
- C) Details are easy to forget
- D) The guide wanted homework

4. What was kept in the closet?

- A) Snacks for visitors
- B) Costumes and posters
- C) Chemistry equipment
- D) Travel bags

5. How did the writer feel about the visit?

- A) It was more interesting than expected
- B) It was too long and boring
- C) It was only useful for scientists
- D) It was less helpful than school

Dear Students, If you intend to improve your English speaking, our language centre has a simple solution. From next Monday, a qualified teacher will offer evening classes twice a week. The course includes pronunciation training, short conversations and games. We use colourful cards and picture stories so the lessons feel lively rather than difficult. Several students have already asked questions regarding homework. The answer is easy: bring a notebook and a pen, and the rest of the material is ours. If you miss a class, do not borrow another student's notes and pretend they are theirs. Instead, speak to the teacher after the lesson and ask what to revise. The centre believes that regular practice matters more than speed, so students should feel calmer and more confident by the end of the month.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the purpose of the text?

- A) To advertise a speaking course
- B) To describe a school trip
- C) To explain a library rule
- D) To report exam results

2. Who will teach the classes?

- A) A student helper
- B) A qualified teacher
- C) A visiting actor
- D) A science coach

3. What should students bring to class?

- A) A dictionary and cards
- B) Their own textbooks
- C) A notebook and a pen
- D) A laptop and headphones

4. What should a student do after missing a class?

- A) Stop attending the course
- B) Copy someone else's notes
- C) Ask a friend for all the answers
- D) Speak to the teacher after class

5. What does the centre believe?

- A) Speed is more important than practice
- B) Regular practice matters most
- C) Homework should be avoided
- D) Evening classes are too hard

Every Friday at lunchtime, the square near our school turns into a busy market. Last week, our class helped to assist the organisers because they wanted to attract more young visitors. One stall sold old-fashioned toys, while another offered half-price books and maps from every continent. I was nervous at first because I had to answer questions from strangers, but the stall owners were friendly and patient. My job was to check which bags were marked for the art club and to carry them less than a kilometre from the bus stop to the square. By midday, the smell of fresh bread and soup filled the air, and the whole place felt cheerful. The event taught me that a simple local market can be both useful and fun when students are willing to help.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What happens near the school every Friday?

- A) A music lesson
- B) A film club
- C) A market in the square
- D) A sports meeting

2. Why did the class help the organisers?

- A) To attract more young visitors
- B) To earn money for a holiday
- C) To practise cooking
- D) To sell school uniforms

3. What was the writer's job?

- A) To play music for visitors
- B) To move marked bags from the bus stop
- C) To paint signs for the square
- D) To sell soup and bread

4. Why was the writer nervous at first?

- A) The square was too far away
- B) The market was closing early
- C) The bags were too heavy
- D) Strangers were asking questions

5. What did the writer learn from the event?

- A) Markets are only for adults
- B) Old-fashioned toys are expensive
- C) Local events can be useful and enjoyable
- D) Students should not help in public

Last weekend, my family stayed at a well-known guest-house on the coast. The place was run by a friendly woman who used to work as a theatre director, so every room had a different style. Ours had a blue wall, a small fridge and posters in the background showing old plays. On Saturday evening, a young guitar player came to the dining room to perform for the guests. We wanted to stay until the end, but my little brother was already exhausted after a day of surfing lessons. The owner said we could listen from our room unless the rain became too loud on the roof. Luckily, the weather stayed calm. The guest-house was comfortable without trying too hard to be fashionable, and that made it feel warm and honest.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the passage mainly about?

- A) A school drama lesson
- B) A family stay at a coastal guest-house
- C) A music competition
- D) A job in a hotel kitchen

2. What was special about the rooms?

- A) Each one had a different style
- B) They were all painted black
- C) They had no windows
- D) They were only for actors

3. Why did the family leave the dining room early?

- A) The music was too loud
- B) The player stopped performing
- C) The little brother was exhausted
- D) The rain came inside

4. When could the family keep listening from their room?

- A) After the director arrived
- B) Unless the rain became too loud
- C) Only if the fridge was moved
- D) When the guests had gone home

5. How did the writer feel about the guest-house?

- A) It was cold and disappointing
- B) It was too modern to relax in
- C) It was expensive but beautiful
- D) It felt comfortable and welcoming

At the town museum, visitors are invited to take part in a new nature trail. When you enter, turn right at the main stairs and pick up the green sheet from the right-hand desk. It asks each group to answer a question about plants, animals and local history. If you are unsure about anything, a guide will inform you where to look next. At the end of the trail, children can create a simple paper bird and take home a small souvenir. The most exciting stop is the room about a recent discovery in the nearby hills, where workers found ancient tools under the ground. The display explains how these objects may influence what we know about early life in the area. Tickets are cheap, and the walk around the museum takes less than an hour.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What should visitors do first?

- A) Pick up a green sheet
- B) Buy a souvenir
- C) Watch a film
- D) Meet the butcher

2. What can children do at the end of the trail?

- A) Paint the museum wall
- B) Feed animals outside
- C) Make a paper bird
- D) Take tools home

3. What is the most exciting stop on the trail?

- A) The ticket office
- B) The room about a recent discovery
- C) The café near the exit
- D) The shop by the door

4. What should you do if you are not sure where to go?

- A) Ask a guide
- B) Leave the museum
- C) Wait for another family
- D) Read the answer sheet

5. Why is the museum trail good for families?

- A) It is cheap and does not take long
- B) It includes free lunch
- C) It only needs one adult
- D) It finishes at the park

For our school health week, Tom and I worked on a project about safe cycling. We did online research in my bedroom and read several reports about why walking and riding bikes are good exercise. Tom drew a poster showing the most important parts of a bicycle, including the handlebars and the lights. He is usually well-dressed and careful, so I was surprised when he turned up in paint-covered trousers after art club. We laughed about it and decided that appearance did not matter as much as clear information. One report said many accidents happen because riders make stupid choices, such as using their phones on the road. We added that point to our poster and also included a drawing of a helmet. By Friday, the finished display looked bright, useful and healthy enough to hang in the hall.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What was the project about?

- A) How to repair bicycles
- B) Healthy and safe cycling
- C) How to decorate a bedroom
- D) Why walking is boring

2. What did Tom show on the poster?

- A) Different school uniforms
- B) Results from an exam
- C) Pictures of internet pages
- D) Important bicycle parts

3. Why was the writer surprised by Tom?

- A) He was usually well-dressed
- B) He refused to do research
- C) He could not draw
- D) He disliked healthy food

4. What unsafe action did the report mention?

- A) Walking too slowly
- B) Wearing bright clothes
- C) Using phones while riding
- D) Keeping a bike in a bedroom

5. Why was the display put in the hall?

- A) It was too large for the bedroom
- B) It looked useful and healthy
- C) The art teacher needed the space
- D) Tom wanted to take it home

Just before the school show began, Anna realised that one orange scarf was missing from the costume box. She checked her locker, looked behind the curtain and asked everyone if they could identify the item. At first, she forgot to search the photography room, where students had been taking pictures of the actors. A boy called Leo, whose initial was also A, said he had seen something colourful near the window. Anna ran there and found the scarf hanging beside a paper butterfly from the art class. She felt relieved at once, because the scarf was needed for the opening dance. Leo joked that the main actor looked too handsome to worry about a small problem, but Anna knew that one missing object could spoil the first scene. When the music started, everything was finally ready.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What was missing before the show?

- A) A camera
- B) A script
- C) An orange scarf
- D) A pair of shoes

2. Where did Anna finally find the scarf?

- A) Inside her locker
- B) Under the stage
- C) In the school office
- D) Near the window in the photography room

3. Why did Anna feel relieved?

- A) The scarf was needed for the dance
- B) Leo offered her a new costume
- C) The show was cancelled
- D) The actor found his shoes

4. What mistake did Anna make at first?

- A) She blamed Leo
- B) She forgot to search one room
- C) She put the scarf in a bag
- D) She left the theatre early

5. What does the story show?

- A) Actors never worry
- B) Butterflies are useful in plays
- C) Small problems can affect a show
- D) Photography rooms should stay closed

On the twenty-third of June, our town will hold its summer sports day. Every runner will go through the park before finishing in the main square. I finished sixteenth last year, which made me proud because I had only started training in spring. This time, I am helping the organisers as well, because I have a part-time job at the stadium on Saturdays. Near the finish line, volunteers will sell drinks, fruit and warm mushroom pies. Visitors love the route because it passes the lake and the old tower, the town's most famous attraction. A local news team may film the race for the evening programme, so the square is likely to be busier than usual. Although I want to run faster, I like the event most because it raises money for the children's hospital.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. When will the sports day take place?

- A) On the twenty-third of June
- B) At the end of July
- C) On the sixteenth of May
- D) Next Saturday morning

2. Where do the runners go before the finish?

- A) Across the beach
- B) Through the park
- C) Around the school hall
- D) Past the hospital

3. How did the writer do last year?

- A) He won the race
- B) He stopped halfway
- C) He worked at the stadium
- D) He finished sixteenth

4. What food will volunteers sell?

- A) Fish sandwiches
- B) Chocolate cakes
- C) Mushroom pies
- D) Sausage rolls

5. Why does the writer like the event most?

- A) It raises money for the hospital
- B) It is shown on television

Hi Emma, I still cannot believe how good our autumn trip was. In October, my best friend Lily and I travelled to a small town in the northwest of France. At first, the destination sounded dull because almost nobody in class had heard of it, and our teacher said there was nowhere exciting to shop. However, the place turned out to be perfect for a quiet weekend. Lily is easygoing, so she never complained when our train was late or when it rained on the first morning. We stayed in a family hotel where breakfast included fresh bread, fruit and local cheese. My favourite part was walking along the harbour and watching fishing boats return at sunset. It was not a glamorous holiday, but it was absolutely relaxing. If the school offers the same trip next year, I will join again.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. Where did the writer travel in October?

- A) A village in southern England
- B) A town in northwest France
- C) A city in eastern Spain
- D) A port in northern Italy

2. Why did the destination sound dull at first?

- A) It was too expensive
- B) The hotel was old
- C) The weather was cold
- D) It sounded like there was nowhere exciting to shop

3. What is Lily like?

- A) Easygoing
- B) Very impatient
- C) Rather shy
- D) Quite rude

4. What did they have for breakfast?

- A) Soup and salad
- B) Eggs and bacon
- C) Bread, fruit and cheese
- D) Fish and rice

5. How does the writer feel about the trip now?

- A) It was too quiet
- B) It was absolutely relaxing
- C) It was not worth the journey
- D) It should be shorter next time

Last week, I travelled to a small village in the countryside for a holiday. It was a single journey with my parents, and we stayed in a cosy hotel. On the first day, we tried the local food, including a delicious chicken dish that was cooked in a special way. The weather was quite warm, so I packed light clothes like a cotton blouse with short sleeves. Unfortunately, I was unable to wear it because it was too hot, and I had to reduce my time outdoors. The village is famous for its history; it's said that a local farmer invented a clever tool for farming many years ago. The holiday involved lots of walking and visiting old buildings, which was tiring but fun. We also took many photos to remember the trip.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the main topic of this blog entry?

- A) A holiday experience in the countryside
- B) A recipe for a chicken dish
- C) The history of a farming tool
- D) Packing for hot weather

2. What type of clothes did the writer pack for the trip?

- A) A heavy coat
- B) A cotton blouse
- C) A woollen jumper
- D) A sports top

3. Why does the writer mention the farmer's invention?

- A) To explain why the village is interesting
- B) To describe how to farm efficiently
- C) To complain about the hot weather
- D) To suggest a new hobby for visitors

4. How does the writer feel about the holiday overall?

- A) It was completely unpleasant.
- B) It was enjoyable despite some challenges.
- C) It was too short and boring.
- D) It was mostly disappointing.

5. What does 'unable' mean in the sentence 'I was unable to wear it'?

- A) Not allowed to Riverside School is excited to announce its 40th Anniversary Community Fair this Saturday from 10 am to 4 pm. Despite the unpredictable British weather, all activities will proceed indoors if necessary. The event aims to entertain families and friends with a variety of attractions, including live music, craft stalls, and games. A highlight will be the costume contest, judged by our beloved history teacher, Mr. Jones, who is known for his impressive moustache. Students are encouraged to come with their classmates and enjoy the day. To manage crowds, we've introduced a new ticketing system at the entrance. For food lovers, try our special Irish coffee—be aware that its bitter taste might not suit everyone. Also, visit our café for refreshments served in charming saucers. Don't miss this opportunity to celebrate our school's history and community spirit!

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the main purpose of this notice?

- A) To advertise a new school system.
- B) To invite people to a community fair.
- C) To describe a history teacher's moustache.
- D) To warn about bad weather.

2. What is Mr. Jones known for at the fair?

- A) His singing ability.

Alex is a 15-year-old student at Riverdale High School. He is very creative and enjoys swimming in his free time. His art teacher, Mrs. Brown, often praises his original ideas. Last week, she assigned the class to draw an accurate picture of the historic cathedral in town. Alex decided to ride his scooter there to get the best view. While he was sketching, he noticed a man acting strangely near the bridge. The man seemed to be planning something. Alex remembered that sometimes criminals use such places for illegal activities. He quickly called the police. The officers arrived and arrested the man, who was indeed trying to steal jewellery from a tourist shop. Alex's quick action was highlighted in the local newspaper. For instance, his story encouraged other students to be more aware of their surroundings. Alex says, 'It's important to use your skills for good. Though I was scared, I knew I had to help.'

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the story mainly about?

- A) A student's art project
- B) A teenager's brave action
- C) A teacher's assignment
- D) A scooter accident

2. Why did Alex use his scooter?

- A) To go to school quickly
- B) To visit the cathedral for his drawing
- C) To meet his friends
- D) To deliver something

3. What does the newspaper article show?

- A) That Alex is famous now
- B) That the cathedral is popular
- C) That crime is increasing
- D) That scooters are unsafe

4. How might Alex feel after helping the police?

- A) Angry with his teacher
- B) Proud of his actions
- C) Sorry for the man
- D) Bored with swimming

5. What does the word 'original' mean in the story?

Saturday, 15th June Dear Diary, Today was quite eventful. I started the morning with skateboarding at the local park. Fortunately, the weather was clear, and I managed to practice new tricks without any accidents. I even tried a new jump that I've been working on for weeks. Afterwards, I decided to visit the bookshop on Main Street. I'm a big fan of fiction, so I spent ages browsing the shelves and finally picked up a mystery novel. Besides reading, I also enjoy the quiet company of other book lovers there; it's so peaceful. Later, I met my friend Sam for lunch at our favourite café. We talked about the increasing pollution in our town; it's probably because of all the traffic. Sam suggested we could join a local clean-up group, which sounds like a great idea. All in all, it was a good day, and I feel fortunate to have such hobbies and friends.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the diary entry mainly about?

- A) The writer's hobby of skateboarding.
- B) A visit to a bookshop.
- C) The writer's activities on a particular day.
- D) The problem of pollution in the town.

2. What did the writer do first on Saturday?

- A) Read a fiction book.
- B) Go skateboarding.
- C) Meet a friend for lunch.
- D) Visit a bookshop.

3. Why does the writer talk about pollution?

- A) To explain why they don't like their town.
- B) To describe a problem they discussed with a friend.
- C) To complain about the weather.
- D) To recommend a book on the topic.

4. What can we understand about the writer from the entry?

- A) They are concerned about the environment.
- B) They prefer reading to skateboarding.
- C) They are planning to move to a new town.
- D) They dislike spending time with friends.

5. In the diary, "company" means _____.

- A) a business organisation
- B) a type of book
- C) being with other people
- D) a skateboarding trick

Last weekend, our school organised an 'Eco-Festival' to promote environmental awareness among students and the local community. The event was planned by a team of teenagers from the Environmental Club, who wanted to inspire everyone to take practical action. Activities included a community clean-up in the park, where volunteers picked up whatever litter they found, such as plastic bottles and paper. Inside the school hall, stalls contained informative displays about recycling, energy saving, and how to reduce plastic use in daily life. Many students shared their feelings about the importance of protecting our planet, expressing both concern and hope. For example, Lisa, a teenager who plans to become a hairdresser, talked about using natural products in salons to be more eco-friendly. The festival demonstrated that wherever we are, whether at school or home, we can make a difference. It was a great success, with over 200 attendees, and everyone left with new ideas and motivation to help the environment.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the report mainly about?

- A) A school festival focused on the environment
- B) A career day for teenagers interested in hairdressing
- C) A community meeting about recycling
- D) A weekend trip to clean the park

2. What did volunteers collect in the park?

- A) Trees and plants
- B) Litter such as plastic bottles
- C) Money for charity
- D) Signatures for a petition

3. Why did the Environmental Club organise the event?

- A) To teach students about hairdressing
- B) To encourage practical environmental action
- C) To sell natural products
- D) To plan a school trip

4. What can be inferred about Lisa?

- A) She works as a hairdresser already
- B) She is not interested in the environment
- C) She wants to make her future job more eco-friendly
- D) She organised the clean-up activity

5. In the passage, 'contain' means:

- A) To include or have inside
- B) To stop from spreading
- C) To control emotions
- D) To hold back

Welcome to the Greenfield Art and Craft Club! We meet every Thursday evening at the community centre. Our club is for everyone who loves creating things. Last month, we had a workshop on making silver earrings. Our member, Sarah, who is a firefighter during the day, showed us how to design beautiful pieces. She is an extremely talented artist. In December, we are planning a special sale where each individual item made by members will be available. We also have knitting sessions where you can make your own pullover. After our meetings, we often enjoy a break with tea and biscuits, but we ask members to help with the washing-up. It's a friendly and relaxing way to spend an evening. If you're interested, just come along! No experience is needed.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the main purpose of the text?

- A) To describe a new art club for children.
- B) To invite people to join a community art club.
- C) To report on a successful craft sale.
- D) To explain a firefighter's daily routine.

2. When do club members usually meet?

- A) Every Thursday evening.
- B) In December for a special sale.
- C) During the day for workshops.
- D) After tea and biscuits.

3. Why is Sarah mentioned in the text?

- A) To show that firefighters can be talented artists.
- B) To advertise a workshop on making earrings.
- C) To explain how to design pullovers.
- D) To encourage members to help with washing-up.

4. What can we infer about the club?

- A) It is only for experienced artists.
- B) It has a friendly and cooperative atmosphere.

Oakwood School is proud to launch our new Green Project this term. The main purpose is to help students learn about sustainable farming and where their food comes from. We are collaborating with Mr. Smith, an experienced farmer from nearby Green Valley Farm. Students can choose from a variety of activities, such as planting seeds, watering plants, or even helping with the harvest. One exciting feature is a webcam set up in the project garden, allowing anyone to watch the plants grow online. We plan to deliver the fresh produce we grow to the school canteen, so students can enjoy healthy meals. To approach this project effectively, we have organized workshops every Friday. Don't forget to visit the decorative fountain near the garden entrance – it's a perfect spot for thinking and planning. Join us in making a difference!

1. What is the main purpose of the article?

- A) To advertise a new school garden.
- B) To introduce a school project about farming.
- C) To explain how to use a webcam.
- D) To invite students to a farming workshop.

2. What will students deliver to the school canteen?

- A) Seeds from the garden.
- B) Fresh vegetables grown in the project.
- C) Cotton for clothing.
- D) Water for the fountain.

3. Why is a webcam mentioned in the article?

- A) To show how farmers use technology.
- B) To allow people to monitor the garden's progress.
- C) To teach students about online safety.
- D) To advertise a new school facility.

4. What can we infer about the project?

- A) It is only for older students.
- B) It aims to improve school meals.
- C) It requires students to buy their own tools.
- D) It is focused on selling products.

5. What does the word 'approach' mean in the sentence 'To approach this project effectively, we have organized workshops'?

Subject: My School Presentation
Hi Alex, How are you? I just finished my big history presentation at school, and I wanted to tell you about it. I worked really hard on it, and my teacher said it was well-made. I compared my project with others in the class, and I think mine stood out because I used a lot of pictures. My grandpa helped me with some research. He's very patient and gave me good advice. I had to present in front of the whole class, but I didn't feel embarrassed because I practiced a lot. I could easily explain my ideas. Next week, I'm getting my diploma for completing the course. I'm so excited! Maybe we can celebrate together. Let me know how your projects are going. Best, Sam

Last November, I decided to take a short holiday to the seaside town of Brightling. It was the furthest I had ever traveled on my own, so I felt both nervous and thrilled. My primary object for the trip was complete relaxation, as I had been studying hard for exams. The hotel I booked had a modern design, which was surprising for such an old town. On my first attempt to explore, I walked to the historic pier, but it started raining badly. I quickly went to a cosy café and treated myself to a warm cup of tea and a large chocolate cookie. I definitely deserved it after the long journey! The next day, the weather was clear, and I spent the day in a nearby forest, which was perfect for unwinding. Overall, it was a refreshing break that I needed.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the main idea of the blog?

- A) To describe a school exam.
- B) To recommend a seaside town.
- C) To share a personal holiday experience.
- D) To explain how to design a hotel.

2. What was the weather like on the first day of exploration?

- A) Sunny and warm.
- B) Windy and cold.
- C) Rainy.
- D) Clear and fine.

3. Why did the writer go to Brightling?

- A) To visit family.
- B) To study for exams.
- C) To relax after studying.
- D) To work as a designer.

4. How might the writer describe the trip at the end?

- A) A waste of time.
- B) A challenging adventure.
- C) A rejuvenating experience.
- D) A boring stay.

5. What does 'object' mean in the sentence 'My primary object for the trip was complete relaxation'?

- A) A goal or purpose.

Join Our Annual Community Sports Day! The Community Sports Day is back this Saturday at Green Park. Everyone is welcome to listen to the opening speech by our mayor at 10 am sharp. Don't miss the exciting football match where our local team hopes to defeat the visitors from North Town. After the game, children can become mini-champions in fun races and win prizes. For safety, we have a first aid station with bandages and medicine ready for any minor injuries. If you get lost, look for the red signal flags near the main stage. Volunteers will insist on everyone following the rules to keep the event fun and safe for all. There will also be a book stall with a bookshelf full of interesting second-hand books for sale. All money raised will go to the local charity. Please bring your own water and snacks, as there are no duty-free shops nearby. We look forward to a fantastic day with you!

Leo, 16, helps his elderly neighbour Mr. Davies every Saturday morning. Mr. Davies used to be a keen cyclist, but an accident means he can't ride his bike anymore. Now, he spends his time writing his life story. Last week, Mr. Davies asked Leo for help with his new computer. 'I need to provide a clear description of my old adventures for my book,' he explained. 'But I'm not good with the keyboard.' Leo happily agreed. He showed Mr. Davies how to type and save his files. Mr. Davies writes about his cycling tours and the interesting characters he met. He has a fantastic vocabulary for describing places. To thank Leo, Mr. Davies gave him a cheque for his birthday. Leo was surprised and grateful. He feels good about using his computer skills to help someone share their amazing stories with the world.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the main idea of the story?

- A) A teenager learns new computer skills from an expert.
- B) A former cyclist receives help to write his autobiography.

Dear Diary, Today started with a special assembly at school. We had a foreign visitor from Australia who came to talk about communication in English. She explained the English alphabet with interesting stories, which made it easier to remember for my upcoming exam. In the afternoon, I had my weekly horse-riding lesson. My instructor said I'm improving, and we practiced jumping over small obstacles. It's my favourite hobby! Later, I went to the local supermarket. There was a discount on fresh fruit, so I bought some apples and oranges. The sign said there was a minimum spend of £5 to get the discount, but I was buying enough anyway. I also picked up a new book on art, as I'm interested in that too. On the way back, I saw some rubbish near the park and decided to pick it up. It's important to keep our neighbourhood clean. Overall, it was a productive day with learning and fun. Best wishes, Sam

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the diary entry mainly about?

- A) A school trip to Australia
- B) The writer's busy and enjoyable day
- C) Learning to ride a horse for the first time
- D) Shopping for discounts at a supermarket

2. What did the writer do in the afternoon?

The annual Summer Science Fair at Riverside School was a big success this year. Over 100 students participated, and registration was smooth, with only a few slightly delayed forms. One highlight was the potato-growing competition, where students displayed their harvests and explained how they cared for their plants. Unfortunately, Sarah's entry was missing a key diagram that showed her experiment's results, so she couldn't complete her presentation fully. During the event, Tom, who had been feeling unwell earlier in the day, had to leave early to rest. Despite these minor issues, everyone enjoyed the hands-on activities, like building simple machines, and learned a lot about science and teamwork. The fair ended with prizes for the best projects, and teachers praised the students for their hard work. Plans are already underway for next year's event, which promises to be even bigger.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the report mainly about?

- A) A school science competition
- B) The problems at a summer event
- C) A successful science fair
- D) Students' health issues

2. Why couldn't Sarah complete her presentation?

- A) She felt unwell
- B) A diagram was missing
- C) She didn't register on time
- D) Her potato plants died

3. Why did Tom leave the event early?

- A) He was bored
- B) He had to help with registration
- C) He was feeling unwell
- D) He wanted to buy a potato

4. What can be inferred about the event?

- A) It was poorly organised
- B) It was only for older students
- C) It was enjoyed by most participants
- D) It focused only on potato growing

5. The word 'missing' in the passage means:

- A) Lost or not present
- B) Slightly delayed
- C) Unwell
- D) Unusual

Welcome to the Riverside School Creative Writing Club's homepage! Our club is a brilliant place for students who enjoy writing stories and poems. We meet every Friday after school in the library, near the town's bookstore. Last term, we had a trip to the bookstore for a book signing event. In our meetings, members share their work and receive helpful feedback. Recently, we explored writing about childhood experiences. One member wrote a secret poem that was very touching. Our instructor, Ms. Clarke, is a young and energetic teacher who guides us. We provide self-service drinks and snacks, so you can relax while you write. If you want to join, come to our next meeting. It's not so-so – it's fantastic! Visit our homepage for more information. We also share writing tips and event news there.

Last Friday, our school's geography club organised a special assembly about Antarctica, the world's most remote continent. Mr. Brown, a teacher with a passion for polar regions, gave a typical presentation that captivated the audience. He explained that a minute in Antarctica's extreme weather can feel much longer, and shared stories of his past expeditions. During the question time, students were encouraged to ask questions immediately after each segment. Many queries were similar to those from previous years, showing a lasting interest in the topic. To raise awareness and funds, the school also sold a product: a set of postcards and a calendar featuring stunning Antarctic photos. The items sold out quickly, and the proceeds will go to an environmental charity. The assembly was not only educational but also inspired many students to learn more about our planet's fragile ecosystems.

Subject: My unexpected adventure! Hi Sam, How are you? I'm writing to tell you about my unexpected weekend. It all started when my cousin's arrival was delayed, so I decided to go on a last-minute trip to the seaside with my partner, Jamie. We met a lovely couple, Mr. and Mrs. Green, who were on their honeymoon. They introduced us to their friend, Captain Roberts, who owned a small boat. He offered to take us out for a sail, but we needed a permit from the harbour master. After some paperwork, we got the permit and set off. The trip was fantastic! We saw dolphins and even helped clean up some rubbish in the water. I have some great photos, but I accidentally deleted a few from my camera. Anyway, it was an amazing experience. Write back soon and tell me about your weekend. Best, Alex

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the main purpose of the email?

- A) To invite Sam on a trip.
- B) To describe an unexpected experience.
- C) To ask for advice about a permit.
- D) To introduce a new friend.

2. Why did Alex go on the trip?

- A) Because Sam suggested it.
- B) Because his cousin's arrival was delayed.
- C) Because he had a permit for the boat.
- D) Because he wanted to meet Captain Roberts.

3. What does Alex ask Sam to do?

- A) A permit for another trip.
- B) Photos from the weekend.
- C) A reply to his email.
- D) Help with deleting files.

Last week, our school organised an expedition to the historic city of York. I was responsible for looking after our group's map and making sure no one got lost. Throughout the day, our teacher, Ms. Clarke, reminded us to stay close and be punctual for meetings. The itinerary included a tour of the York Minster, an amazing cathedral that has stood since the 7th century. For lunch, we enjoyed refreshments at a cosy café, featuring local treats like lemon drizzle cake and fresh sandwiches. Later, we explored the medieval streets under sunny skies, which made the walk even more enjoyable. I heard a talented musician playing the trumpet beautifully there. This trip not only taught me about history but also about being reliable and working as a team. It was an unforgettable adventure!

Dear Community Members, We are excited to announce the Meadowbrook School Circus, taking place on Saturday, 15th June. The event will start at twelve o'clock in the school hall and finish by four p.m. Following the main show, you can enjoy various activities, including face painting, which requires make-up provided by our art club. If you encounter any trouble during the event, please look for volunteers in blue shirts or send a message to the school office. For food and drinks, we accept all major currencies, but tokens are recommended for faster service. The circus will feature amazing acts from our students, including juggling, acrobatics, and animal shows with cute puppies. Bring your family for a day of fun and laughter! Remember, entry is free, but donations are welcome to support our school's new library. The following classes will perform: Class 5A will do a magic show, and Class 6B will present a dance routine. If you need any assistance, don't hesitate to ask. We look forward to seeing you there!

Mrs. Brown, a 68-year-old retired housewife, had always been hopeful about traveling. Her grandchild, who lives in Canada, invited her for a visit. After saving for years, Mrs. Brown applied for a passport. The application took a long time, but she didn't give up. Finally, the day came when she could fly. Before leaving, she used an answerphone to leave a message for her son, ensuring him she was fine. The flight was exciting, and upon landing, her grandchild greeted her with a warm hug. They drove to a countryside area where a gentle stream flowed through the forest. Walking by the stream, Mrs. Brown shared stories from her youth. She felt it was important to give credit to her late husband, who had always supported her dreams. Later, her grandchild helped her set up a small exhibition of old family photos in the local community centre. It was a joyful reunion full of new memories.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the main idea of the story?

- A) A grandmother's travel adventure.
- B) The difficulties of getting a passport.
- C) A family gathering in Canada.
- D) How to set up a photo display.

2. What did Mrs. Brown do before her flight?

- A) She called her son on the phone.
- B) She recorded a message on an answerphone.

Our school camping club will hold a winter sleepover on Friday evening, and I am writing to announce a few details. Everyone is welcome to arrive in ordinary clothes or in a funny costume. The teachers say either choice is OK/okay, as long as it is safe and warm. Because the hall can get cold after midnight, please do not forget your pyjamas and a small heater if your parents allow it. The oldest student helper is nineteen, and he is an expert at organising indoor games. He believes that people are more likely to enjoy the night if they bring snacks and join in. Last year, a few students made negative comments about the food, but most of us still had a great time. Remember to hand in your permission form by Wednesday so we know how many beds to prepare.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. Why is the writer sending this message?

- A) To complain about last year
- B) To invite parents to a meeting
- C) To announce details of a sleepover
- D) To ask for a new costume

2. What may students wear?

- A) Ordinary clothes or a costume
- B) Only pyjamas
- C) School uniform only
- D) Sports clothes only

3. Why should students bring pyjamas and maybe a heater?

- A) The games room is outside
- B) The club wants a fashion show
- C) Beds are not ready
- D) The hall can be cold at night

4. What is special about the oldest student helper?

- A) He cooks all the meals
- B) He is nineteen and good at organising games
- C) He works at the school office
- D) He dislikes the sleepover

5. What must students do by Wednesday?

Report: Community Help Day Success On Saturday, 15th October, our school organised a Community Help Day to support local families. The event began at 8 am with a hearty breakfast for all volunteers. We were given written guidelines to understand our tasks. Teams collected broken appliances, such as cookers, from the neighbourhood. These were repaired by skilled volunteers and donated to unemployed residents. Another group provided information on job opportunities, helping people collect useful resources. A marine biologist gave a talk about dolphin protection, educating everyone on environmental issues. The event was held at the community centre near the train station, attracting over 200 participants. Thanks to everyone's efforts, we raised funds and provided essential support to many families. The event was a great success, with volunteers working together smoothly. Many unemployed people received much-needed appliances, and the job information stall helped several individuals find new opportunities. The talk about dolphins also raised awareness about marine conservation in our community. Overall, it demonstrated how our community can unite to make a positive impact.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the report mainly about?

- A) A school trip to a marine centre.
- B) A community event to help people in need.
- C) A breakfast for unemployed people.
- D) A repair service for cookers.

2. What did the volunteers receive at the start of the event?

- A) A breakfast.
- B) Job information.
- C) A talk about dolphins.
- D) Money.

3. Why was the talk about dolphins given?

- A) To collect donations for dolphin research.
- B) To educate people about protecting marine life.
- C) To repair dolphin-themed items.
- D) To attract more volunteers to the event.

4. What can be inferred about the event's location?

- A) It was held at a school.
- B) It was at a train station.
- C) It was convenient for people to attend.
- D) It was far from the community.

5. In the passage, 'hearty' in 'hearty breakfast' means:

Welcome to the Riverside School Computer Gaming Club! We meet every Thursday after school in the computer lab. Our club is open to all students, and we focus on playing and learning about different video games. This term, we are exploring a new game where players must defeat monsters in a virtual world. It's exciting and challenging! We manage our sessions carefully to ensure everyone gets a turn to play and learn. Neither beginners nor experienced players will feel left out, as we have games for all skill levels. Our club leader, Mr. Smith, helps us improve our skills and finally, we often have mini-tournaments with prizes. If you love computers and gaming, come and join us! You can appear at the lab on Thursday at 4 PM. Don't forget to bring your enthusiasm. We look forward to seeing you there.

Greenfield High School's Science Week was a great success! On Monday, we had a workshop on weather. Students learned about thunderstorms and how lightning forms. Using a mobile weather station, we recorded data during a real thunderstorm that hit our town. It was uncomfortable to stand in the rain and wind, but the experience was valuable for our projects. On Tuesday, we focused on farming and sustainability. We discussed how a quarter of the world's food comes from small farms, and why it's important to support them. In biology class, we used textbooks to study marine life, and some students even tried diving in the school's new pool to see underwater plants. The week ended with a record attempt for the longest science experiment, which lasted three hours. Everyone agreed it was an excellent way to learn new things and have fun.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the main idea of the article?

- A) A new school building project
- B) A successful Science Week at school
- C) A trip to a farming village
- D) A weather recording competition

2. What did students do on Monday?

- A) They went diving in the pool.
- B) They recorded a thunderstorm.
- C) They visited a farm.
- D) They read textbooks in class.

3. Why is the school holding Science Week?

- A) To improve students' grades in science.
- B) To learn about weather and farming in a practical way.
- C) To compete with other schools.
- D) To raise money for new equipment.

4. How might students feel after Science Week?

- A) Bored and tired
- B) Confused about science
- C) Happy and inspired
- D) Uncomfortable with the weather

5. In the passage, what does 'uncomfortable' mean?

- A) Not easy to use
- B) Causing physical discomfort
- C) Difficult to understand
- D) Too expensive

Hi Alex, I hope you're well. Last weekend, my family and I went to the new recycling centre outside town. We took some old items to recycle, like bottles and paper. On the way, we had to cross at a busy crossing near the motorway. My little brother was anxious, but he behaved really well, holding my hand the whole time. At the centre, we saw a middle-aged man organising everything. He was very helpful and showed us how to separate materials for recycling. Afterwards, we visited a charity shop where I found a broken bookcase for only £5. I bought it to fix up for my room. I'm looking forward to our trip to London next month. Have you booked the tickets yet? Let me know so we can plan the details. Best wishes, Sam

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the main purpose of Sam's email?

- A) To describe a weekend activity
- B) To ask for help with a project
- C) To invite Alex to a recycling centre
- D) To recommend a charity shop

2. Why did Sam's brother behave well during the trip?

- A) He was excited about the journey
- B) He was feeling anxious
- C) He was tired and sleepy
- D) He was happy to help

3. What does Sam ask Alex about in the email?

- A) Booking tickets for a trip
- B) Fixing a broken bookcase
- C) Visiting a recycling centre
- D) Organising a family event

4. What can we infer about Sam from the email?

- A) He enjoys repairing items
- B) He works at a charity shop
- C) He is moving to London
- D) He studies environmental science

5. What does the phrase 'looking forward to' mean in the email?

Last summer, I went on an unforgettable trip to Italy with my family. We were excited to explore the country's tourism attractions, from historic cities to coastal villages. Our main goal was to attend a traditional festival in a small town, known for its music and food. The journey started smoothly, but we faced a temporary issue when our train was delayed at the platform. The delay was due to a technical fault, and we had to wait for an hour. During this time, we met some friendly locals who told us about the festival. When we finally arrived, the event was in full swing. We enjoyed the performances and tried various dishes. Unfortunately, my camera was damaged when I dropped it, so I missed capturing some moments. Despite this minor problem, the trip was amazing, and I learned a lot about Italian culture. I hope to return someday for another adventure.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the main purpose of the blog entry?

- A) To describe a memorable family holiday in Italy.
- B) To explain how to fix train delays.
- C) To warn about the dangers of festivals.
- D) To recommend the best cameras for travel.

2. What was the reason for the train delay mentioned in the passage?

- A) A strike by railway workers.
- B) Heavy rain and flooding.
- C) A technical fault.
- D) An accident on the platform.

3. Why did the writer and their family go to the small town?

- A) To visit a famous museum.
- B) To attend a local festival.
- C) To meet relatives.
- D) To buy souvenirs.

4. What can be inferred about the writer's overall experience?

- A) They were mostly happy despite some difficulties.
- B) They were disappointed with the festival.
- C) They preferred the train journey to the destination.
- D) They would not travel to Italy again.

5. What does the word 'damaged' mean in the context of the camera?

- A) Broken or harmed.
- B) Lost or misplaced.
- C) Stolen by someone.
- D) Cleaned and improved.

Greenfield Community Centre is hosting a leisure fair this Saturday from 10 am to 4 pm. The event aims to be a peaceful gathering for the whole community. Activities will be divided into indoor and outdoor zones, including sports, games, and creative workshops. To prevent any safety issues, we have arranged for volunteers to monitor the areas. Local businesses are welcome to set up stalls to showcase their goods. Food and drinks will be sold by local vendors. The current situation is that we need more helpers for the morning shift, especially at the button-making craft station. Left-hand scissors and tools will be available for those who need them. Please register online or at the centre by Friday to confirm your attendance. We look forward to a fun and relaxing day for everyone. Don't miss this chance to connect with your neighbours.

Lucy, a 16-year-old from a small town, loved skateboarding after school. Her daily routine was simple: homework, then skateboarding in the park with friends. One Saturday, while waiting for her friend at the drugstore, she bought a lottery ticket on a whim. A week later, the result was surprising – she won £10,000! Lucy was thrilled but also horrified by the sudden attention from everyone in town. She promised to use the money wisely for her family, who were not wealthy. This win was a significant development for them. Lucy still enjoys skateboarding, and she often wears her favourite sleeveless jacket while skating. Her ability to stay calm and her fitness from the sport helped her handle the situation well. The story shows how a small change in routine can lead to magnificent outcomes.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the main point of the story?

- A) How skateboarding improves fitness.
- B) How winning the lottery changed a girl's life.
- C) The importance of family support.
- D) The dangers of buying lottery tickets.

2. What did Lucy buy while waiting for her friend?

- A) A lottery ticket.
- B) A slice of cake.
- C) A new skateboard.
- D) A sleeveless top.

3. Why was Lucy horrified after winning?

- A) Because she had to stop skateboarding.
- B) Because her family was angry with her.
- C) Because of the sudden attention from others.
- D) Because she lost the lottery ticket.

4. What can we infer about Lucy's family?

- A) They were very strict with her.
- B) They were not wealthy before the win.
- C) They disapproved of her skateboarding.
- D) They already knew about the lottery.

5. What does 'result' mean in the sentence 'the result was surprising'?

- A) The consequence of an action.
- B) The end of a school term.
- C) A piece of information.
- D) A type of document.

10th May Today was our school science fair. I worked on my physics project about electricity. I made a poster and put an advertisement on the school noticeboard to attract visitors. My friend Tom helped me carry the heavy equipment; he's very strong, like a hotel porter! The judges were impressed. One of them, a famous scientist from the city university, asked me lots of questions. I was nervous but I explained my report clearly. Afterwards, I felt hungry. I went to the café and had a yogurt with some spinach – not my favourite, but it's healthy! It started raining heavily at lunchtime. I was so glad I remembered my umbrella. I walked home slowly, thinking about my project. I hope I win a prize. It would be great for my university account.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the main purpose of this diary entry?

- A) To describe a school event
- B) To complain about the weather
- C) To advertise a science project
- D) To recommend a healthy food

2. Why did the writer mention an 'advertisement'?

- A) To explain how they promoted their project
- B) To show they sold something at the fair
- C) To describe a poster they bought
- D) To talk about a job they want

3. The word 'porter' in line 4 refers to someone who _____.

- A) works in a hotel
- B) is good at science
- C) carries heavy things
- D) is a famous judge

4. What does the writer feel about the spinach?

- A) It is their favourite food.
- B) They eat it because it is good for them.
- C) They think it tastes better than yogurt.
- D) They only eat it at science fairs.

5. What might the writer use a 'university account' for?

- A) To save money for future studies
- B) To store their physics report
- C) To buy a new umbrella
- D) To pay for more spinach

Last Saturday, our school hosted its annual Spring Fair in the main hall and playground. The event aimed to raise money for a local charity, and it was definitely a big success, raising over £500 with over 200 people attending. One of the most popular stalls was selling delicious homemade chocolate biscuits and cakes. Many visitors said these treats were the best part of the day. Another attraction was a craft table where children could decorate candles with stickers and paint. This was very popular, and some kids even made multiple candles to take home. Additionally, a local farm brought in several gentle rabbits for a petting session, which was loved by younger children, though one parent made a complaint about the noise level. To improve future events, the organisers sold tickets online before the fair, which helped reduce waiting times. They also plan to multiply the number of volunteers next year to handle the crowd better. Overall, the Spring Fair was a wonderful community event that brought everyone together.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What is the main purpose of the report?

- A) To describe a school charity event.
- B) To complain about a noisy fair.
- C) To explain how to bake chocolate cakes.
- D) To advertise a farm visit.

2. How much money did the fair raise?

- A) Over £200.
- B) Over £500.
- C) Over £1000.
- D) Not specified in the report.

3. Why were tickets sold online?

- A) To make more money.
- B) To reduce waiting times.
- C) To attract more people.
- D) To avoid complaints.

4. What can be inferred about next year's fair?

- A) It will be held online.
- B) It will have more volunteers.
- C) It will sell more chocolate.
- D) It will not have rabbits.

5. What does 'multiply' mean in the passage?

- A) To add to.
- B) To increase greatly.
- C) To divide.
- D) To copy.

On Saturday, our school will host the twenty-first youth speaking day. Students from several local schools are coming to take part in a short speech competition and a music workshop. If you have an inquiry about times or tickets, please send it to the office by Thursday afternoon. The morning programme begins with a pleasant face-to-face meeting for all competitors, so they can relax before speaking in public. After lunch, a young musician will lead a session on using voice and rhythm in presentations. Teachers will also give short advice after each round, which many students find useful. My sister entered the contest when she was in eighteenth place on the reserve list, but another student became ill and she was invited at the last minute. She has practised every evening and now feels much more confident about the day.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What event will happen on Saturday?

- A) A youth speaking day
- B) A sports final
- C) A school trip
- D) A parents meeting

2. How should someone ask about times or tickets?

- A) Speak to the musician
- B) Wait until the day
- C) Ask a classmate
- D) Send an inquiry to the office

3. Why is there a face-to-face meeting in the morning?

- A) To choose the winners
- B) To help competitors relax
- C) To sell tickets
- D) To move furniture

4. What will the young musician do?

- A) Judge every speech
- B) Play during lunch
- C) Lead a workshop session
- D) Drive students home

5. How did the writer's sister get a place?

- A) Another student became ill
- B) She was the first to apply

We were meant to take a charter bus to the sports centre for a squash tournament last Sunday, but the weather changed everything. Heavy rain began before breakfast, and by the time we reached the crossroads near school, the driver said the roads were unsafe. Our coach checked his contract with the bus company and decided to cancel the trip. It was a real disappointment because we had trained for weeks. Some players were even wearing their new team fashion jackets for the first time. While we waited for parents to collect us, my friend Zara used her handkerchief to dry the windows so we could watch the storm outside. Later, the teacher promised that the competition would happen next month if the hall was free. We were unhappy at first, but at least nobody was put in danger.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. How were the players meant to travel?

- A) By train
- B) By charter bus
- C) By bicycle
- D) On foot

2. Why was the trip cancelled?

- A) The sports centre closed early
- B) Not enough players arrived
- C) The weather made the roads unsafe
- D) The bus company lost the contract

3. What did the coach check before cancelling?

- A) The contract with the company
- B) The players' tickets
- C) The school timetable
- D) The cost of lunch

4. Why did Zara use her handkerchief?

- A) To clean her shoes
- B) To wrap a present
- C) To dry the team shirts
- D) To wipe the windows

5. How did the players feel in the end?

- A) Glad the match was finished
- B) Angry with the driver
- C) Still sad but pleased nobody was hurt
- D) Excited to play outdoors

Last night, the science club put on an entertainment show about space travel. The hall was full of families, and nearly a hundred people came to watch. At the centre of the stage stood a yellow model rocket that the older students had been working on for weeks. Their aim was to achieve two things: explain how rockets move and prove that science can be fun. During the programme, visitors guessed the quantity of air needed to push the model upward. When the countdown ended, a button was pressed and the rocket flew high enough to make everyone cheer. One boy almost dropped his drink in surprise, but luckily no liquid touched the equipment. The evening was lovely from start to finish, and by the end the club felt complete because every member had helped in some way.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What kind of event did the science club organise?

- A) A space entertainment show
- B) A school dance
- C) A football match
- D) A cooking lesson

2. How many people came to watch?

- A) About twenty
- B) More than two hundred
- C) Exactly fifty
- D) Nearly a hundred

3. Why did the students build the rocket?

- A) To win money
- B) To explain science in a fun way
- C) To travel outside
- D) To decorate the stage

4. What did visitors guess during the show?

- A) The speed of the bus
- B) The colour of the rocket
- C) The quantity of air needed
- D) The number of teachers there

5. How does the writer describe the evening?

- A) Lovely and successful
- B) Too noisy and long
- C) Useful but dull
- D) Confusing and unsafe

Last month, our class visited a wildlife park in the western part of the county. The bus driver asked to see the teacher's licence before we set off, and everyone laughed because Mr Hayes had almost forgotten it. At the park gate, the bird keeper gave us a short talk about animals from southern Africa and Australia. Unfortunately, the weather turned wet, so we spent more time indoors than we had planned. In the reptile house, I bought a small purple notebook because I wanted to write a composition about the trip later. There was also a curved mirror near the exit, which made us all look taller and stranger than usual. Even with the rain, the day was alright in the end. The best present was being able to watch the baby penguins being fed at close range.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. Where did the class go?

- A) A museum in the city centre
- B) A park in the south of France
- C) A wildlife park in the western county
- D) A beach near school

2. What did the driver ask to see?

- A) The map
- B) The teacher's licence
- C) A present for the keeper
- D) The lunch tickets

3. What did the keeper talk about?

- A) Birds from southern places
- B) How to draw a composition
- C) Why the mirror was broken
- D) The school timetable

4. Why did the class stay indoors more than planned?

- A) The guide was late
- B) The reptiles were hungry
- C) The notebook shop was crowded
- D) The weather became wet

5. Why did the writer buy the purple notebook?

- A) To show the driver
- B) To give it to the keeper
- C) To write a composition later
- D) To hide the licence inside

On Sunday, our running club met in the park at fourteen minutes past nine for a charity morning. Some members preferred jogging around the lake, while others helped set up tables for snacks and hot drinks. I arrived early with my camera because the organiser wanted a photograph of everyone before the race began. We covered one table with a bright table-cloth and placed cups in a straight line so the picture would look tidy. The weather was cold enough to freeze the grass in the shaded areas, but the sun soon warmed us up. Later, one parent asked if I was looking for employment as a sports photographer, which made me laugh. I am still a student, but it was nice to hear. The event was friendly, well organised and very reasonable for a small local club.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. Why did the writer arrive early?

- A) To start jogging first
- B) To take a photograph
- C) To sell hot drinks
- D) To clean the park

2. What did the group put on the table?

- A) A table-cloth and cups
- B) A heater and coats
- C) Medals and books
- D) A television and food

3. What does the passage say about the weather?

- A) It was hot all morning
- B) It stayed dark until midday
- C) The rain stopped the event
- D) The grass could freeze in the shade

4. Why did a parent mention employment?

- A) The writer was taking photos well
- B) The club needed a new coach
- C) The event cost too much
- D) The organiser was late

5. How does the writer describe the event?

Our gymnastics team had an early flight on Monday, so we met at the airport before sunrise. Mrs Khan stood by the entrance and asked anyone who had not checked in online to come straight to her. One boy arrived with an untidy bag full of clothes, snacks and even an eraser from his maths lesson. He said he had packed in a hurry and was already tired. Another student felt disappointed because the warm breeze outside made her wish we were going to the beach instead of to a sports hall. Before we went through security, the coach read out every surname to make sure the team list was correct. The group would consist of twelve gymnasts and two teachers. Once everyone was together, even the nervous students began to smile and talk about the competition ahead.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. Where did the team meet?

- A) At the airport
- B) In the gym
- C) At the beach
- D) Outside the hotel

2. What unusual thing was in the boy's bag?

- A) A football shirt
- B) A silver cup
- C) A camera battery
- D) An eraser

3. Why was one student disappointed?

- A) She lost her ticket
- B) The warm breeze made her want a beach trip
- C) Her surname was missing
- D) She forgot her bag

4. What did the coach read out before security?

- A) The weather report
- B) The hotel address
- C) Every surname
- D) The flight price

5. What would the group consist of?

Our class trip to England began on the twenty-fourth of March, and the hardest part was the airport check-in. Because our flight left early, we travelled overnight by coach and arrived before dawn. The teacher told us to keep a phone number for emergency contact in our pockets and to request help at once if anything went wrong. One student's suitcase was too heavy, so the airline worker showed him how to remove a silver photo frame and pack it in hand luggage instead. A banker standing behind us smiled and said school trips were always more exciting than business travel. After security, we sat near the gate and watched planes connect with flights to other cities. Although everyone looked tired, the mood was cheerful because our long journey was finally beginning.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. When did the trip to England begin?

- A) On the first of March
- B) On the twenty-fourth of March
- C) At the end of April
- D) On a Saturday in May

2. What was the hardest part of the journey?

- A) The airport check-in
- B) The overnight coach
- C) The flight to England
- D) The walk to the gate

3. Why did the class travel overnight?

- A) The teacher preferred it
- B) The airport was very far away
- C) Hotels were too expensive
- D) Their flight left early

4. What did the airline worker ask one student to do?

- A) Call an emergency contact
- B) Give a bag to the banker
- C) Move a silver photo frame into hand luggage
- D) Buy another suitcase

5. How did the class feel after security?

- A) Tired but cheerful
- B) Angry and confused

Everyone at school has received an invitation to the spring talent evening next month. The event will be led by a former student who now works as a television presenter. He has agreed to introduce each act and interview the most talented performers after the show. Because the hall is open to the public, extra security will be in place at the doors. Students are asked to keep large bags in the wardrobe room behind the stage and to arrive at least thirty minutes early. My band is practising a new song, and our music teacher is doing us a favour by lending extra speakers. She says that performing live helps create a stronger connection with the audience than posting videos online. If the night goes well, we may even raise money for the local youth club.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What event are students invited to?

- A) The spring talent evening
- B) A science exhibition
- C) A sports prizegiving
- D) A film afternoon

2. Who will lead the evening?

- A) The head teacher
- B) A famous singer
- C) A security guard
- D) A former student who is now a presenter

3. Why will there be extra security?

- A) The band is very popular
- B) The wardrobe room is full
- C) The hall is open to the public
- D) Students are bringing money

4. Where should students leave large bags?

- A) In the music room
- B) In the wardrobe room
- C) Beside the stage lights
- D) At the front door

5. What favour is the music teacher doing?

- A) Lending extra speakers
- B) Buying the tickets

When Mr Lewis took retirement from teaching, he did not want to spend every day sitting at home. Instead, he opened a small second-hand bookshop near the station. At first, some people were surprised by the idea, but the shop soon became a happy part of the town's culture. Mr Lewis keeps a shelf of travel writing, a corner for young readers and a table for revision guides before exams. He says his greatest happiness comes from helping a child discover a story they love. Last week, I asked whether he ever misses the classroom. He smiled and said he sometimes thinks about his old students, especially when one of them is absent from the shop for a long time. Still, he feels totally sure that he made the right decision.

--- QUESTIONS ---

1. What did Mr Lewis do after retirement?

- A) He travelled abroad
- B) He started teaching online
- C) He opened a second-hand bookshop
- D) He worked at the station

2. Why were some people surprised at first?

- A) The shop sold food
- B) A teacher opened a bookshop
- C) The prices were too low
- D) The building was very large

3. What does Mr Lewis put on the table before exams?

- A) Travel books
- B) Children's stories
- C) Free magazines
- D) Revision guides

4. What gives Mr Lewis the most happiness?

- A) Selling expensive books

My cheerful grandparent came to stay with us on the twenty-second of August while my parents were away. On the first morning, Grandpa took me to the city centre because he had to visit the passport department at the embassy. Afterwards, we bought bread, fruit and a spicy sausage for lunch. He also chose a bag of peanut biscuits for the train journey home. Grandpa likes looking at old buildings and always tells stories about every street. When we returned to our flat, he asked where he could put the food. I showed him the freezer, but he laughed and said the biscuits would be better in the cupboard. Later, he helped me write a postcard and reminded me that caring for other people's property is part of being a good guest. By the end of the week, I did not want him to leave.

A bright new vegetarian cafe has opened beside the library, and the owner is looking to employ one weekend helper. The lady who runs the place says she wants a student who can smile at customers, clear tables quickly and learn simple tasks in the kitchen. I visited yesterday with my sister, and the room felt sunny and welcoming, with plants on every shelf. The menu was short but delicious: soup, salad, sandwiches and fruit drinks. Although I am not vegetarian, I enjoyed the food and the calm atmosphere. The owner explained that the job is only for Saturday mornings, so it would not affect schoolwork. She also said experience is useful but not necessary if the person is polite and reliable. It sounds like a good first job for someone who likes working with people.

--- QUESTIONS ---

- D) Near the beach

2. What kind of helper does the lady want?

- A) Someone who can cook full meals
- B) A person with years of experience
- C) A polite student who can help customers
- D) A musician for Saturday evenings

3. Why is the job suitable for a student?

- A) It includes free books
- B) It is only on Saturday mornings
- C) It is close to the beach
- D) It pays for all school costs

4. What did the writer think of the cafe?

- A) Too small and dark
- B) Expensive but quiet
- C) Only good for vegetarians
- D) Sunny, welcoming and tasty

5. Who runs the cafe?

- A) A lady owner
- B) The local library
- C) Two school students
- D) A sports coach
